

The client sends a pick request to the server whenever it wants; if it is their turn and the card can be drawn, the request succeeds and the client receives the card data, otherwise it receives an error message.