

The client tries to connect; the connection is refused if the match is already full. The server sends the request to enter the number of players for the match only to the first connected player, then everyone must log in: if either the username or totem parameter is invalid, it must be re-entered; if correct, the choice is confirmed.